Hitters V-3, as described from France, is just another rocket, and the only new thing about it is its size and its substitution of alcohol for gasoline fuel, and even the latter is not altogether new.

Sixty feet long, five feet in diameter is the description. Divided into three sections, the meteorological rocket, which Dr. Robert Goddard was firing in New Mexico years before 1939. His was a long cylindrical tube, an air torpedo in looks.

German rocket experiments before the war were using various fuels, including powder, liquid oxygen and gasoline.

The V-3 is said to use liquid air. The V-3 is said to use liquid air. The V-3 is said to use liquid air.

The expected altitude of a V-3 trajectory would carry it to a point where it could not effectively shoot oxygen from the air. Hence it is designed as a true rocket, which carries its oxygen in its fuel.

The French reports give no idea of the amount of explosive in V-3. Take-off weight is 14 tons. Much of this may be fuel, but how much would depend on the range.

The only information about the weapon's power is that it has an explosive radius of three kilometers, or almost two miles.

But the words explosive radius do not necessarily mean very wide destructive power. The absorbing power of air is tremendous. At a distance the air waves are able to do considerable damage to structures which happen to be situated just right, but the lethal power is long gone.

The V-3 is a short range weapon, 50 miles or less, the radio control is easy to understand. If it is long range, the efficiency of radio control is not so easy. A huge rocket of this type would travel much faster than any airplane, although maybe the unknown but highly touted "speeds of German rocket planes" might be a help in keeping track of one.

Painted walls behind sink or range may be waxed so that water and grease spatters may be wiped off easily.

Okla. A. & M. Knocks Out Porkers, 19-0

Oklahoma City, Sept. 30 —(AP)—Led by Bob Fenimore, 18-year-old sophomore who ran for one touchdown and passed for another, the Oklahoma Aggie football team overcame the University of Arkansas Razorbacks 19-0 here last night.

After a desultory first half in which neither team could score, Fenimore early in the third period broke away for a 50-yard sprint that put the ball on the Arkansas 20. After running the ball to the five in two plays, the former Woodward, Okla., all-star passed to Wingback Cecil Hankins for the first score. Fenimore converted to give the Aggies a 7-0 edge.

With the ice broken, Fenimore a few minutes later faked the ball to Hankins and skirted right end for a touchdown after he and Freshman Joe Thomas led the Aggies in a 65-yard march from their own 30-yard line. Fenimore's conversion attempt failed and the score was 13-0 Aggies.

The blond Fenimore sent the Aggies on the way to their third straight victory in the third straight game with a 27-yard pass to end Glen Moore. Two plays later Fenimore limped from the field with a leg injury.

The Aggies drove to the Arkansas four and Thomas passed to Hankins for the touchdown at the start of the fourth period. Thomas' placement attempt went wide and the scoring ended, 19-0, Aggies.

The Razorbacks' most serious scoring threat came early in the first quarter when Tommy Donoho and Alton Baldwin drove the Porkers to the Aggie 15. Their vaunted passing attack of years past failed to materialize.

Fenimore's injury was not believed to be serious. It was not a reinjury of the hurt that hampered him through most of last season, Coach Jim Lookabaugh said.

Ralph Foster, veteran tackle, drew plaudits for his work in the predominantly freshman Aggie line.

Bobcats Hold El Dorado to 6-10-6 Tie

Hope's 1944 Bobcats opened the home season last night with a startling reversal of form and held the heavier, highly-favored El Dorado eleven to a 6-10-6 tie.

Hope outplayed the visitors throughout, for six tumbles swinging to one to the Bobcats in the last half—after a scoreless first two periods.

The El Dorado score came in the third period. The visitors had kicked off to open the second half. Hope was stopped in its own territory. Made a kick that was short—and El Dorado took over on the Hope 20-yard line.

Harris, El Dorado halfback, shot a pass to Lyle. Left end, on the 3-yard marker. Then "Tisworth," El Dorado's great fullback plunged for the victory. The try for extra point failed, and the score was: El Dorado 6, Hope 0.

The Bobcats struck back in the fourth quarter with a touchdown march. The hope opened play with the ball in Hope's possession deep in the visitors' territory—but El Dorado took over on downs on its own 21. Halfback Harris brought it back to the El Dorado 13. Clarence Garrett, halfback, advanced it to the 30—but a 15-yard penalty for holding nullified the gains and put the ball back on the Hope 12.

El Dorado kicked off from the shadow of its own goal posts and the ball went out of bounds on the visitors' 40, where Hope took over. The Bobcats' new star, Joe Rooker, quarterback, who No. 11 flashed throughout the game, went to the El Dorado 34, and to the 30-yard stripe for first down. The Rooker picked up 20 yards, and the ball was on El Dorado's 13. Clarence Garrett, halfback, went to the 10—and Rooker whirled over for the touchdown. Try for point was no good, and the score was tied: Hope 6, El Dorado 6.

With their state championship dream evaporating the El Dorado Wildcats began launching long but ineffective passes. The game ended, however, with the ball in Hope's possession on the El Dorado 20—after a blocked El Dorado kick, and as the gun sounded it seemed that the winning tally was in the hands of the Bobcats.

First down were 10 for Hope, and 6 for El Dorado. They were even in the first quarter at two apiece, and two apiece again in the second period; four each for the first half. In the second half Hope rang up six first downs to only two for the visitors—and the tide of battle which had been running fairly even swung to Hope's kicking, never good, but worse and kept the visitors constantly in the hole in the last two periods—except for the one thrust for a touchdown.

Outstanding surprise of last night's game was the development of a shovel-pass for the local attack. Harold Cumble, fullback, shot a beautiful one to Howard Ebb, right end, in the second quarter. It was good for 10 yards at a critical stage in the game, moving the ball from El Dorado 27 to a first down on the El Dorado 37.

He followed with another pass, this time to Quarterback Rooker on the El Dorado 12. A touchdown apparently was in the bag, but Hope lost on downs on the El Dorado 9.

In the same second quarter, Johnny Brannan, backfield substitute, went to glory when El Dorado fumbled on its own 24 and he recovered. But after a play or two a 15-yard penalty set the Bobcats back on the El Dorado 35, and the visitors took over on downs.

Officials' last night were: Referee, Bill Nichols, Ouachita referee; Bill Nichols, Ouachita referee; Bill Nichols, Ouachita referee; Bill Nichols, Ouachita referee.

Last night's game marked the 10th year of Coach Hammond's coaching year in Arkansas, and his 1944 team brought the home crowd to a cheering frenzy, playing victoriously against a bigger, more experienced and unbeaten conference foe.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

New York, Sept. 30 —(AP)—The United States Military Academy has just issued a booklet, written by Joe Cahill, based on the theme "Football pays dividends in battle."

Today, when the 1944 Cadet football team opens its season, we can think of nothing better than to quote a few passages about the eight football-playing officers whose careers are sketched.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. When 21-year-old Ike Eisenhower entered West Point, he was known as a lightweight tackle from Salina, Kas. High school who couldn't be fooled more than once on a play.

As a Plie he was shifted to the backfield and was on his way toward becoming a varsity standout when he broke a knee plunging into the Tufts line. So Eisenhower finished his undergraduate career as a freshman coach and cheer leader.

"His special talents," says the booklet, "were his speed and ability to diagnose the plays of his opponents."

Gen. Joseph Stilwell. As a cadet, "Vinegar Joe's" 145 pounds made him a second-stringer. But when Army played Chicago in 1933 it was Stilwell who won the game. With the score tied at 6-6, Stilwell entered the game in the last few moments. A Chicago back fumbled and Walter Eckersall was called upon to punt. Back in the 45-yard line, Stilwell took the punt and, seeing a Chicago player ready to tackle him, signaled for a fair catch. The over-anxious westerner interfered and the resulting penalty gave Army the ball on the 20-yard line, from where a field goal brought the winning in tops.

Lieut. Gen. Omar Bradley

Another lightweight, Omar Bradley was kept on the Army "B" squad for two seasons before dogged determination won him a berth as varsity end in 1913. He was noted for his tackling and offensive play. As a star of the Army baseball team, Bradley had a three-year batting average of .383.

Remember Them?

In the famous Army-Navy 21-2 tie of 1926, Chuck Born played end for Army, black-haired "Blondy" Saunders was next to him at tackle.

Tom Trappell at left half. Now Brig. Gen. Born, sending bombers in his command over Germany.

"The areas of enemy fighter strength are like defensive plays on the gridiron. If we hold one, for another and saturate a third, it means a figurative touchdown for us."

Col. Meahan, who "quarantined" the highly important bombing of Jap-held Wake Island, disappeared soon afterward in a mission over New Guinea. . . . Lt. Col. Trappell, whose heroism in defense of Bataan already is a legend was last reported a prisoner of the Japs. . . . Col. Paul Bunker, Army's first All America player back in 1901, was captured when Corregidor fell and died in a Japanese prison camp.

Last Game to Settle Race in American

Associated Press Sports Writer
By JOE REICHLER

The Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns are tied again in the American League race for the pennant, the lightest since 1903, to go the full 154 games — and perhaps into a playoff — before the winner is decided.

As a result of the Browns 4 to 1 and 1 to 0 double triumph over the New York Yankees while the Tigers split, 5 to 2 and 9 to 2, with the tail-end Washington Senators yesterday, it makes no difference what happens today. The winner will not be known until the last out in the Tigers-Nat and Browns-Yankees games Sunday.

In the evening season ends with both teams still deadlocked a single game playoff will take place on Monday at Briggs Stadium, Detroit.

Only once before has such a dramatic move been necessary — in 1908 — when the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants clashed. The Cub behind three-fingered Mordecai Brown on that one from Charlie Mathewson, 4-2, and went on to win the world championship from the Tigers.

The Browns moved up on even terms as Jack Kramer bludgeoned the Yankees' Ernie Bonham in the opener and Nelson Potter outduelled Hank Borowy in the nightcap. The victories not only eliminated the Yankees from any mathematical pennant chance but made it impossible for Joe McCarthy's men to gain second place, as well.

In winning the second game, the Browns made only two hits but Don Gutteridge's double, a wild pitch and an infield out scored the lone run in the first frame.

The Browns were helped by sensational fielding. Mike Kreevich robbed Johnny Lindell of an extra-base hit in the eighth with two out and two out. And Gutteridge ended the game with a sterling stab of pinch-hitter Paul Waner's looping fly ball with the tying run on second and two out in the ninth.

After winning the opener handily from the Nats, the Tigers saw their ace Dizzy Trout routed in the night cap and went down to defeat as Stan Spence belted a home run and a triple to account for seven runs, four RBIs and three runs scored. Southpaw Mickey Haefner was the winner.

Cincinnati moved to within a half game of the second place Pirates by whipping the Brooklyn Dodgers, 10-2, while the Phillies blanked Pittsburgh, 3-0, behind the seventh-inning pitching of Ken Raffensberger. Ted Wilks, likely World Series defeated, the National League champion Cardinals, 5-2, in 10 innings. Boston beat the Cubs, 5-1, for Nate Andrews' 10th victory.

In other American League games, Philadelphia's Athletics won the first from Cleveland, 4-2, and gained a tie in the second, 1-1, the game being halted by darkness at the end of nine innings. The Chicago White Sox, behind Thornton Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, 4-2, at night.

Enough's Enough. The aged French physicist George Claude, a perfectionist of neon light, is reported to be the inventor of the Nazi robot bomb. We wouldn't put it past him, but we'd rather not believe he is responsible for this, too.

Having blinked at many streets filled with the garish reds and red and piercing blues of these spluttering, blinking signs we have concluded that responsibility for this eye-punishing invasion is about all that the conscience of one mortal man could bear.

Rugged Diet. A captured Nazi document angrily refutes the prevailing notion that Der Fuehrer "tears down curtains, bites the carpet, and has convulsions on the floor" when things upset him.

It isn't hard to believe that Adolf has given up the unsanitary habit of rug-munching, but even those clean news dispatches from the front are constantly providing him with something fresh to chew on.

general went to Congress. After voting for America's entrance into World War I, he enlisted in the air force and served with a bombing squadron in Italy. Leaving the army with the rank of major, he went back to Congress for 10 years and first was elected mayor of New York City in 1933. He was reelected in 1937 and 1941.

Should La Guardia be commissioned, he would be considered a leave absence and Newbold Morris, president of the city council, would be acting mayor.
